

Upcoming InRoad Workshop

The Role of Regional, National, Institutional & EU Funding in the Long-Term Sustainability of Research Infrastructures

Hamburg, 1-2nd March 2018

The complex interplay of regional, national, institutional and EU funding should not become an obstacle in the development of research infrastructures. With this in mind, the goal of this workshop is to bring together stakeholders from different research facilities and public funding organisations to:

- identify the main bottlenecks during the different RI phases
- discuss the importance of the national roadmap process, its timing and funding
- share experiences with regard to the long-term funding of RIs
- provide recommendations for a better coordination of the different levels of RI funding

The Hamburg Workshop will help gain an understanding of the issues faced by RI Operators and public funding organisations with respect to the different funding schemes and aims to deliver recommendations to improve RI funding in the next generation of structural funds and EU Framework Programme. The two-day event will follow an interactive approach, where participants will be encouraged to share in-depth information.

For logistical questions, please do not hesitate to contact petra.ullmann@desy.de or carne.deandres-sanchis@helmholtz.de for information on the programme of the workshop.

Registration will be opened on January 15th 2018 here: <https://indico.desy.de/indico/event/19267/>

Please note that the contingent for hotels close by to DESY ends on January 11th 2018.

Registration is limited and participants will be selected based on their field of expertise and location to ensure a diverse representation at the event.
